The Office of Engagement collaborates with CSU international initiatives in China, Kenya, and Ethiopia to advance university-based extension, online education, climate smart agriculture, and rural community development.

The Office of Community and Economic Development collaborates with regions statewide to address community, economic, and workforce issues.

Located in Sterling, Colorado, NREC and its partners, Northeastern Junior College and Morgan Community College, facilitate community initiatives and extend Colorado State University resources.

CSU Extension provides trusted, practical education to help Coloradans in all 64 counties solve problems, develop skills and build a better future by safeguarding health, increasing livelihood, and enhancing well-being.

The Colorado Water Institute focuses the water expertise of higher education on evolving water concerns and problems faced by Colorado citizens.

CSU Online offers degrees, certificates, digital badges, and training programs to help people achieve their educational goals from wherever they are.

The Office of Engagement collaborates with CSU international initiatives in China, Kenya, and Ethiopia to advance university-based extension, online education, climate smart agriculture, and rural community development.

Located in Sterling, Colorado, NREC and its partners, Northeastern Junior College and Morgan Community College, facilitate community initiatives and extend Colorado State University resources.

CSU Extension provides trusted, practical education to help Coloradans in all 64 counties solve problems, develop skills and build a better future by safeguarding health, increasing livelihood, and enhancing well-being.

The Colorado Water Institute focuses the water expertise of higher education on evolving water concerns and problems faced by Colorado citizens.

CSU Online offers degrees, certificates, digital badges, and training programs to help people achieve their educational goals from wherever they are.

The Office of Community and Economic Development collaborates with regions statewide to address community, economic, and workforce issues.

Located in Sterling, Colorado, NREC and its partners, Northeastern Junior College and Morgan Community College, facilitate community initiatives and extend Colorado State University resources.

CSU Online offers degrees, certificates, digital badges, and training programs to help people achieve their educational goals from wherever they are.

The Office of Engagement collaborates with CSU international initiatives in China, Kenya, and Ethiopia to advance university-based extension, online education, climate smart agriculture, and rural community development.

The Office of Community and Economic Development collaborates with regions statewide to address community, economic, and workforce issues.

Located in Sterling, Colorado, NREC and its partners, Northeastern Junior College and Morgan Community College, facilitate community initiatives and extend Colorado State University resources.

CSU Extension provides trusted, practical education to help Coloradans in all 64 counties solve problems, develop skills and build a better future by safeguarding health, increasing livelihood, and enhancing well-being.

The Colorado Water Institute focuses the water expertise of higher education on evolving water concerns and problems faced by Colorado citizens.

CSU Online offers degrees, certificates, digital badges, and training programs to help people achieve their educational goals from wherever they are.

The Office of Engagement collaborates with CSU international initiatives in China, Kenya, and Ethiopia to advance university-based extension, online education, climate smart agriculture, and rural community development.

The Office of Community and Economic Development collaborates with regions statewide to address community, economic, and workforce issues.

Located in Sterling, Colorado, NREC and its partners, Northeastern Junior College and Morgan Community College, facilitate community initiatives and extend Colorado State University resources.

CSU Extension provides trusted, practical education to help Coloradans in all 64 counties solve problems, develop skills and build a better future by safeguarding health, increasing livelihood, and enhancing well-being.

The Colorado Water Institute focuses the water expertise of higher education on evolving water concerns and problems faced by Colorado citizens.